CONGRESS.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. TUESDAY, December 19. DEBATE

ON THE JOINT RESOLUTION Approving the conduct of the Executive in relation to the refusal to receive any further communication from Francis Jas. Fackson.

In committee of the whole Mr. BASSET in the chair-

MR. M'KEE-I rise to submit a few remarks on the subject of the resolution now under consideration, in violation of a rule which I had prescribed to myself; which was to take no part in the public discussions of any general question, which might come before this houseduring the present session-a rule to which I might have adhered, had it not been alledged that those who were epposed to a resolution last session, approbating the president for the prompt manner in which he met the overture made to this government by Mr. Erskine, would act inconsistently by supporting the resolution now on your table.

At the opening of the last ses i n of congress, the president of the United States communicated to us an arrangement entered into between this government and Mr. Erskine, the representative of the British government in America, important in itself and more so when considered as opening the way to a more extended accommodation. The terms of this arrangement were carried fully into effect by the United States, with the expectation that the terms of the agreement thus concluded would have been carried into operation by the Druger government. But, sir, it is now found that this arrangement has been disarowed, the minister by whom it was made recalled, and Mr. Jackson sent to replace

This new minister in the explanations which he found it necessary to make to this government of the causes producing this disavowal on the part of Great Britain, thought proper to use and repeat a language highly indecorous and offensive; and out of these circumstances the present question

We find, sir, that this new minister, in the threshold of his correspondence with Mr. Smith, insinuates that the arrangement made with Mr. Erskine, was entered into with ball faith on the part of this govern ment; for we find the following statement in page 30 and 31 of the printed documents.

"You state, sir, very truly, that an arrangement had been made between you and Mr. Erskine, and that his majesty had tho't proper to disavow that arrangement.

" I have here in the outset, to regret the loss of the advantage of verbal intercourse with you, as I should have availed myself of it to enquire whether by your statement, it were your intention to complain of the disavowal itself, or of a total want of explanation of it, or of the circumstances of the explanation not having been made thro' me. I observe that in the records of this mission there is no trace of a complaint, on the part of the United States, of his majesty having disavowed the act of his minister. You have not, in the conferences we have hitherto held, distinctly announced any such complaint, and I have seen with pleasure, in this forbearance on your part, an instance of that candor, which I doubt not will prevail in all our communications, inasmuch as you could not but have thought it unreasonable to complain of the disavowal of an act done under such circumstances, as could only lead to the consequences that have actually followed."

Mr. Jackson here congratulates himself on the candor and torbearance of Mr. Smith in his failure or refusal to make any complaint whatever of the disavowal of the reason for the refusal on his part. arrangement made with-Mr, Erskine, alledging as a reason for the absence of every trace of complaint on the part of the U. States, that the arrangement was made un- the act of the minister, in violation of his der such circumstances as could only lead | instructions, would be obligatory on his go-The consequences here alluded, are a disa- tions, where a ratification was reserved, in have done, and put an end to farther opportive government resulting therefrom, was rowal of the act of Mr. Erskine.

Now, sir, if our executive negociated an arrangement with Mr. Erskine or any other minister, under such circumstances as could only lead to a disavowal of the act, by the government with whose minister the arrangement was made and a knowledge of these circumstances rendered it an act of forbearance and candor to make no complaint whatever of the disavowal-it must necessarily follow, that the arrangement thus made was improperly entered into by this government; inasmuch as a reliance on this arrangement by our citizens had overspread the ocean with American commerce, which was wafted by every gale to distant regions, all subject to the avarice of British cruizers, and this fact was known to those who administered our government at the time this delusive arrangement was made. This, sir, appears to me to be the fair inference resulting from this sentence, when divested of its diplomatic flummery and reduced to plain English. Mr. Jackson seems to find a motive for this insinuation from a communication made by Mr. Erskine to the British government, were he states that he had submitted to the consideration of Mr. Smith the three conditions mentioned in Mr. Canning's despatch of the 23d of January, and inasmuch as the arrangement of April is variant from these three conditions, and substituted (as he states) in lieu of them he hence infers the undoubted right of his majesty to disavow the arrangement, and solemnly declares that this was the only despatch by which the conditions were prescribed to Mr. Erskine for the conclusion of an arrangement with this country.

Mr. Smith replies to Mr. Jacksou as fol-

" If there be no trace of complant against the disavowal in the archives of the mission it is because this government could not have entered such complaint before the reasons for the disavowal had been explained, and especially as the explanations were justly and confidently expected through the new plenipotentiary. And as to the supposed reserve on my part on this subject, in our several conferences I did imagine, that my repeated intimations to you of the necessity of satisfactory explanations, as to the disavowal, were sufficient indications of the dissatisfaction of this government with respect to the disavowal itself."

Mr. Smith, in this reply, seems to maninifest a surprise that it should be declared that the despatch from Mr. Canning to Mr. Erskine of the 23d of February was the only one by which that minister was to regulate his conduct, and this surprise seems to be the more natural, when by a reference to the correspondence which took place in April last between Mr. Smith and Mr. Erskine, at the time the arrangement was concluded, we find Mr. Erskine, submitting, conformably to instructions, certain propositions for the consideration of the American government. This official declaration that Mr. Erskine had received the instructions of his government justified this government to proceed with the negociation, unless, as it is alledged by the gentleman from Connecticut, (Mr. Dana) it became the indispensable duty of this government to see and examine Mr. Erskines powers before any arrangement was concluded with him, inasmuch as a ratification of the arrangement of April last was not reserved -- and several ancient authorities are produced in support of the opi-

Whatever may be the rule of procedure where one government, by its representative, makes important concessions to another, or where the terms of the government are unreasonable or unequal in themselves, I cannot pretend to answer; but where the terms of the agreement are reasonable and equitable in themselves, it has not been the practice of more modern times to demand a sight of the instructions possessed by the minister making or proposing to make the arrangement. By a reference to the correspondence which took place between Mr. Pinkney, our minister at London, and Mr. Canning, in which Mr. Pinkney submits certain propositions to the British government for their consideration, we do not find that Mr. Pinkney was called on to shew his instructions or interrogated respecting them. His official statement, that he was instructed to make the overture was then deemed sufficient, and although Mr. Canning, did not think proper to accede to the terms proposed by Mr. Pinkney, yet no want of power or authority is alledged as a

There seems to be a manifest impropriety in the notion of demanding a sight of instructions in ordinary cases, inasmuch as were reasonable andequitable in themselves. I course taken was surely the only project your sir, what was acquired by this verament in the arrangement with Mr. Erskine unreasonable or unequal? Was any thing more obtained than a recognition of our natural and indefeasible right freely to navigate the ocean according to the rules of public law, a right belonging equally to all foreign and independent nations? If, he the arrangement of April last, a ratification had been reserved, the British government would in good faith have been bound to have ratified the agreement, as no good reason could be assigned for failing to do so.

And, sir, this failure to see and examine Mr. Erskine's instructions is not alleged by Mr. Jackson as a cause or reason why this government had not a right to complain of the disavowal. From this I infer that the official statement contained in Mr. Erskine's correspondence, that he had instructions, and that he was authorised to make the arrangement, was all that was necessary to be known by this government before the arrangement was entered into, and that the secretary of state twas necessarily lead to believe that Mr. Erskine had other letters of instruction than those contained in Mr. Canning's despatch of the 23d of January last.

Sir, let us now examine Mr. Jackson's reply to Mr. Smith's statement, in which Mr. Smith declares this government had not a knowledge that the instructions contained in Mr. Canning's despatch of the 23d of January was the only despatch by which the conditions were prescribed to Mr. Erskine for the conclusion of an arrangement on the matter to which it relates, and declares, if this fact and been made known at the time the arrangement was made, that it would not have been

Mr. Jackson, in his reply to Mr. Smith, declares that Mr. Smith was acquainted with the instruction which was given to Mr. Erskine, and that he had no other instruction than that contained in Mr. Canning's despatch of the 23d January. Is it possible to conceive a con radiction more positive than that contained in this reply? If a gentleman in his place states any matter of fact to exist, and he is told in reply that the fact stated is untrue, and that his statement was made with a perfect and intimate knowledge of its falsehood, all the world would at once agree he was insulted. And the present thes does not differ from the case I put, except that it is obscured with diplomatic verbage.

But, sir, Mr. Smith in his letter of the 18th of November, expresses his dissausfaction at the liberty taken by Mr. Jackson, and declares such insinuations inadmiss .ble. And what is Mr. Jackson's reply to Mr. Smith? Why, sir, we find in page 71 of the printed documents, the follow-

" You will find that in my correspondence with you, I have carefully avoided drawing conclusions that did not necessarily follow from the premises advanced by me, and last of all should I think of uttering an insinuation where I was unable to substantiate a fact. To facts, such as I have become acquainted with them, I have scrupulously adhered, and in so doing I must continue whenever the good faith of his majesty's government is called in question, to vindicate its honor and dignity in a manner that appears to me best calculated for that purpose."

What were the insinuations which Mr. Jackson had made? Why, first, that the arrangement negociated with Mr, Erskine was done under such circumstances as could only lead to a disavowal, and it would have been an act destitute of candor on the part of our government to make any complaint of that disavowal; and, secondly, that Mr. Smith was perfectly acquainted with Mr. Erskine's instructions, and knew he had but the one instruction contained in Mr. Canning's despatch of the 23d of January. Notwithstanding Mr. Smith positively denies any such knowledge, and complains of such insinuations as inadmissible, yet Mr. Jackson would least of all make an insinuation where he could not substantiate a fact; and to facts, such as he had became acquainted with them, he had scrupulously adhered. and so doing would continue!

This, sir, is a justification of all the charges fulminated against this government by Mr. Jackson, and a notice given that he would continue to charge them with bad faith in the formation of the arrangement, and of possessing a knowledge of Mr. Erskine's instructions, which had been posione; and the question now before us is whether we will support our governments the measure thus taken, whatever consequences may grow out of it? I am prepared to sav we will.

Is has been stated by the gentleman from Rhode Island, that he did not see where this insult was given. Why, str, it does appear to my mind as clear and as elident as the light of day is to my sense of sight. from an examination of the documents, that an insule was given to this government beyoud bearing; and I should also think thes no man could examine those de umen with a determination to give the facts stated their proper weight, who would not make the same discovery. But, sir, ac ording to the old adage, none so blind as him who

I come now to that part of the subject which principaly induced me to rise, which is to snew (it I can) that there exists no idconsistency in my opinion on the resolution proposed at the last session by a gentleman tion Virginia not now in his place, and the support which I mean to give the present resolution. Indeed, sir, I might retort on the gentleman from Connecticut, inasmuch as he was in favor of the resolution of last session and is now opposed to this. If the two resolutions are substantially similar, in must be inconsistent as well as myself, and it would prove only that we have changed sides. But, sir, I take this change as prisenting an irrefutable proof that the two cases are dissimilar, and the intelligence of that gentleman has discovered this fact-The resolution of last session was merely approbatory of the conduct of the president for the performance of an act which appears to me to have been merely a ministerial one. Congress had vested the president with a power to remove by a proclamation the interdiction of our trade with G. Britain and France, or either of them, on the happening of a particular contingency. The contingency happened in the opinion of the president, and he discharged his dury. But, sir, the resolution on your table is a pledge on the part of Congress to the president, to the nation, and to the world, that we will support him in the measure which he has taken, whatever consequences may grow out of it.

The gentleman from Connecticut has con- of sidered this resolution in the nature of a defiance of war, a w that preparations are necessary to meet the event. I do not consider the resolution in this light; neither do I consider it a measure giving any just care of war to England. But if it should be made a cause of war, I conceive no previous preparations are necessary. Whenever war is made on this nation, that spirit of patriotism which has been lying dormant for years will be roused : it will be communicated from one end of this country to the other with the rapidity of the electric fire id; it will convert in an instant the merchan(s, farmers, mechanics, and yeomanry of your country into citizen soldiers-The immense and almost inexhaustible resources of this country will be rendered active, and like Leonidas and his Grecians, they will defend every inch of ground, and if without success, that spot of this country where the last hope of liberty deserts them will be their tomb. In what, sir, does the strength of this country consist? Not in numerous armies or in large and well appointed fleets, but in the affections of the people to the government. If the people are with you your plans can be executed with effect. If they are against you you are weak and can do nothing with elflect.- I am therefore in favor of the resolution.

Mr. WHEATON-Mr. Chairman-Honor d with a sent in this house, and called upon to give my vote in the decision of question important to the nation, it becomes my duty and a duty which ought not to be sisted by incliration, to submit for consideration some remarks respecting the subject upon which we are to decide : and I indulge the hope that on this, as on every other of casion, our discussions may proceed with coolness and in a manner becoming the it gislature of a free and discerning people who know what is due to themselves and the rest of mankind.

The resolutions before us, sanctioned by the honorable senate, now solicit the atter tion of the representatives of the America people, and strongly invite them to gitt their assent to several propositions, dedage ed from a correspondence, lattle held by tween the secretary of state and the Balish minister, Mr. Jackson, relatively to the

SATURDAY, December 30.

[Taken for the Alexandria Gazette.]

Mr. Lawson moved to print the report made yesterday by the committee on the affair of J. A. Coles, and the documents accompanying the same. This motion caused much conversation, in which Mesrs. Dawson, Wilson, Livermore, Taylor, Gardinier and Upham took a part.

Mr. Gardinier said he had not had time to examine this subject properly, but as far as he had examined it he was decidedly against the report. He thought the committee had not reported consistently with the facts they had stated. He wished to know if an attack by a young athletic man, on a member of this House—an old man, cut up with wounds in fighting for independence, could be done away by a letter of acknowledgement. He wished to know if there was any of the spirit of '76 in the House, as well as a spirit of honor and a spirit to defend the privileges of the members. He therefore urged the printing and called the ayes and noes on the question. The question was taken by ayes and nocs and carried-Ayes 76-Noes 25.

The order of the day was called for on the resolutions from the Senate.

The question of postponement still belore the house.

Mr. Poindexter rose and made a speech in favor of the resolutions.

TO THE PUBLIC Who are effected with Coughs, Colds, Astmas,

and Consumptions

HERE is perhaps no medical observation better established, none more geerally confirmed by the experience of the best physicians of all ages and countries, and none of more importance to the practitioner than the fact that many of the most difficult and incurable complaints originate in neglected COLDS. In a climate as variable as ours, where the changes of the weather are frequently sudden and unexpected, it requires more care and attention to guard against this subtle and dangerous enemy of life, than most people imagine, or are willing to bestow .-Hence the vast number of patients afflicted with coughs, catarrhs, asthmas and consumptions. The many cases of the kind which fell under my observation, the disappointment I experienced in practice, from remedies highly recommended, and my own pre-disposition to pulmonic complaints, were strong inducements for me to consider whether a compound, consisting of mild vegetable substances could not be invented, more free from the well founded objections of practimoners, and better calculated to avert the threatening destruction of the lungs.

I have the satisfaction to offer to the public such a remedy, under the name of the VEGETABLE PULMONIC DETER-GENT, well adapted to various constitutions and habits, and to declare with the fullest confidence that I found this composition far superior to others intended to answer the same purpose. I um perfectly satisfied, that practitioners, who have frequently to combat not neglect the use of the lancet and other from the pain in my side and cough. evacuations, whenever they are indicated, will place this medicine on the list of their most favorite remedies; as it can in no case do harm. I will abide by this motto:

NO RELIEF NO PAY. This motto may be deemed ostentatious by some, and amounting to a positiveness that the medicine will invariably effect a cure in any stage of a disease like a miracle; the is fully sensible if taken seasonably, and according to the directions, it will either prevent or cure, and if unseasonably, it will most sensibly alleviate distress and prolong life; and having no desire to profit by the confidence of the sick and afflicted, induces me to make the above overture. Should the contrary appear in any instance, as in some it possibly may, the money for the medicine will be cheerfully refunded by the person who may vend the same. GEORGE ROGERS.

N. B. The above named medicine is secured to the subscriber by letters patent from the President of the United States, and prepared at his Dispensary in Northamptons county of Hampshire and state of Massachu-

To the Public.

The great benefit which I have experienced from Rogers's Vegetable, &c. and a firm persuasion that it may afford relief to others, induces me to make every laudable exertion for its distribution.

For five years preceding the last of Dec. 1807, in consequence of taking a violent cold I had been afflicted with the asthma, a disorder which I conceived to be hereditary, my father and grand father both having greatly suffered from it. The disorder increasing rapidly upon me, in the spring of 1807, I consulted Dr. C .- I. Seeger, but the urgency of his business prevented him from attending at that time, particularly to my case. My business made it necessary for me to leave home and be absent the greater part of summer, which deprived me of the able professional assistance of Dr. Seeger. In September last, a severe cold brought on a violent cough and the disorder assumed an aspect more serious and alarming than at any former period-I was extremely debilitated, emaciated and con fined. Such was the irritability of my lungs I was obliged to use the greatest cautionin the act of respirlaton. After a free use of Rogers's Vegetable, &c. for about two months I was perfectly relieved of the dreadful cough which and so long afflicted me, and completely cured of every symptom of the asthma-In short, blessed be God, I have continued in sound health ever since. As these facts may be important to those unfortunate individuals who are suffering from the same disorder, I have been thus particular in their detail.-And I do not hesitate to declare my solemn conviction, both from my own experience and observing its effects on others, that Dr. Rogers's V. P. B. is an easy, safe and effectual remedy for coughs and asthmas, and is the greatest antidote to all pulmonic complaints that the worki has ever witnessed.

Jacob W. Brewster.

Northampton, January, 1809.

THIS may certify, that about the first of October last, I was attacked with a violent cough, which proceeded, as was the opinion of my physician, who is a man well approved of in his profession, from a bruise which I received on my left side about a formight before. By his consent I tried Rogers's Pulmonic Delergent I was very weak and low and took but half the quantity prescribed by his directions. In three days I was much relieved, and in eight days quite cured of the cough.

Moses Parsons, jun. Northampton, February, 1809.

Northampton, (Neass.) Reb. 1809. I James Freatun, also hereby certify, that in the fall of the year 1808, I was seized with a severe cold attended by an obstinate and distressing cough. The violence of my cough scon produced a pain in my side and breast, and frequently spitting of blood, in short, all the horrid symptoms of a consumption were rapidly assailing me. In this situation I was recommended to Dr. George Rogers, who rendered me immediate relief by administering his Vegetable Deturgent. Theve continued the use of it ever since and for three months past, though not completely restored to health, I have been able constantly to attend to my business-and I fully believe that my partial restoration has been solely owing (under God; to this valuable medicine.

> James Heaton. To the Public.

In consequence of taking a severe cold in May, 1803. I was seized with a violent pain in my side, attended with a distressing cough, which, although I had the advice and prescriptions of a respectable physician lasted me four weeks, without any aleviation. I then applied to Dr. George Regers, who administered his Vegetable Polmonic Deturgent, which gave me immediate re the effects of suppressed perspiration and do ! lief; and in ten days I was entirly freed
